Sylvester Thompson, col., was killed by an L. & N. freight train near the southern city limits Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock. Just before the fatal accident occurred Thompson, who had been in the city a week or two, told one of his friends that he was on his way home. As the negro's friend turned to see if Thompson caught the train he saw him being rolled over in front of the trucks. His body was badly mutilated.

REFUSED HALT FOR SUBMARINE

Sinking of Ship and Loss of American Lives Justified by Captain's Action.

TRIED HARD TO ESCAPE FATE.

Tragedy Will Have No Effect on U. S. Negotiations With Germany.

London, July 2.—Captain Trickey, of the Armenian, in an interview said he surrendered to the German submarine only when his ship was afire in three places, her engines were out of action, and a dozen of the crew had been killed by shrapnel fire.

Eleven of the members of the crew who perished, Captain Trickey said, were Americans.

"The submarine, as a signal for us to stop," said Captain Trickey, "first put a couple of shots over our bows when we were four miles off, I put my stern to him and ran for it."

"The submarine then began to shell us in earnest, the shrapnel bursting all around us, killing several of the crew and knocking others overboard. I soon realized the enemy was gaining on us, but I did not promise to surrender without a struggle but my steering gear was soon hit and placed out of commission. Then a shell fell into the engine room and another carried the Marconi house away. Still another cut down the funnel and disabled the stokers. "By this time the ship was on fire in three places and I decided to surrender. We had resisted the enemy for an hour, and twelve or thirteen men lay dead on the deck."

"The submarine commander then forced me to clear the ship and at seven minutes past eight the Armenian went down shattered by two torpedoes."

"I must say that the submarine commander showed us every fairness after we had given up, picking up many of the crew who, because of damaged boat, had fallen into the water."

The Austro-German drive northward into Poland from Galicia is gaining momentum and England is puzzled as to whether the German purpose is to make this the main effort or to continue a concentrated offensive to force the Russians from the southeast tip of Galicia.

Whatever the ultimate object is, fighting along the Guila Lipa river has not abated and Berlin not only records progress here but also farther north in the arc around Lemberg and along what has become the northern front, between the Vistula and the Bug.

The Austro-German forces on this front are estimated at 2,000,000 and their progress has been rapid. They have crossed the forest fringing the Tanew river and are not far from the Zamosc fortress, 25 miles north of the Galicia frontier.

Only a hundred miles to the north is the great Russian base Brest-Litovsk, linked with Warsaw by important railways and lying almost due east of the Polish capital.

The development of the Galician campaign has created a situation entirely unexpected by the allies.

A few months ago the Russians were at the Carpathian passes and in the spring confident predictions were made in England and France that Hungary soon would be overrun. The British press has been optimistic for weeks that the Russians would turn, but it now frankly concedes that the invasion of Russia is serious. The papers, however, put faith in Russia's campaign for the production of more munitions.

The Arras section maintains its reputation as the storm center of the west, but although losses are piling up daily neither side delivers a decisive blow.

An Athens dispatch tonight says the allies have taken the Turkish stronghold of Krithia, on the Gallipoli peninsula, to the western edge of which Gen. Ian Hamilton's report of yesterday carried his forces.

Gratification over the British progress in Gallipoli is hardly more pronounced than the realization of the tremendous task England and France face in their attempt to clear the Turks from natural defenses barring the way to Constantinople.

The first stroke against British naval craft in home waters for some time is announced by the admiralty tonight, which says that fourteen men have been lost by the mining or torpedoing of the destroyer Lightning, an old craft laid down two decades ago.

HOLIDAY HONORED

Picnic at Campbell's Cave Greatly Enjoyed Yesterday.

The first event toward the celebration of the glorious fourth was the Elk's picnic at Campbell's cave yesterday. The attendance was not entirely confined to members of the lodge, but a large number of outsiders were present. Nearly three hundred and fifty attended. The whole crowd was in the gayest mood and everyone had a fine time. The big barbecue dinner was the feature of the occasion.

After dinner there was a lot of post prandial oratory.

Women Aroused.

That the case of Madeline Ferola, the Italian woman now facing the death chair in Sing Sing, is even a more flagrant instance of the miscarriage of justice than the Frank case, is declared by a number of prominent women in New York who met to formulate plans to keep Mrs. Ferola from the chair if possible.

ELECTION MONDAY

New Officers to Be Chosen For Hopkinsville B. M. A.

DOUBLE NOMINATIONS MADE.

Voting To Be By Ballot at Meeting Place From 9 to 4.

The annual election of officers for the H. B. M. A. will be held Monday between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., in the offices of the association.

President Cooper has designated R. T. Stowe and G. E. Dalton to conduct the election and official ballots have been printed, which will be given out to those entitled to vote. All members not 3 months in arrears are entitled to vote. There are now about 160 members.

Two nominations each have been made for president, first and second vice-presidents, and treasurer. Twelve directors are to be elected and 24 nominations have been made. Other names may be written on the ballots in spaces left for that purpose. But little interest is seemingly being taken in the positions, which carry with them considerable responsibility. The new directors will elect a secretary at their first meeting.

As Lemon Sees It

Mr. McDermott is a nice gentleman, learned in the law and capable of making a good governor, but looking out over the situation, we fail to believe that he has any chance to receive the democratic nomination, and more especially since Hon. Jas. Edwards became a candidate for lieutenant governor. He and Mr. McDermott are both from the same city and it is hardly probable that the people will support both of them and we believe the coming into the race for lieutenant governor, by Mr. Edwards, has virtually put Mr. McDermott out of the running.

Mr. Bosworth has been down in this end of the state for the past week or ten days and has been making an earnest and active campaign, but in all justice to him and to the facts in the case, we cannot hear that he has added very materially to his strength, in fact, he has not a very strong following in the first congressional district and it is our opinion that he has not a show of carrying a single county in the district, but wherever he has any strength he will be third in the race.

Mr. McChesney has lost much of his following since his trip through this end of the state and now the vote of this district in the main will be between him and Mr. Stanley, with the prospects that Mr. Stanley will carry Caldwell, Lyon, Trigg, Marshall, Fulton, Graves, Carlisle, Ballard and McCracken counties. We may not have the dope exactly correct at this writing, but that is the way the governor's race looks to us at present, but as the campaign progresses and as the Messenger becomes better informed as to the strength of the various candidates, it will so announce in its columns.—Mayfield Messenger.

Over Cadiz Team By a Close Score.

In a hotly contested game, Thursday, at Cadiz, the "Co. D" aggregation won its third straight victory by the narrow margin of one point. The final count stood 8 to 7. For "Co. D" the feature playing was the fielding of Waller, at short stop, and the hitting of West and Fenton Cunningham. Edwards, who started pitching, was knocked from the rubber in the second frame and was replaced by Underwood, who finished out the game. The local boys drove over to Cadiz in Waller & Trice's big auto-truck.
